Member Network

Why a Network?

- IGCS can play a central role in establishing a stronger, engaged community of members. IGCS becomes the focus of member interaction, connecting members.
- Effective way to conveniently bring people together (outside of face-to-face meetings or encounters) is through a private, online community.
- Members can distribute and access shared documents, images, videos, and online resources, ask questions and participate in written discussion threads regarding topics of interest.
- Essentially a “meeting place” that can be accessed 24 hours a day allowing the members to meet one another, exchange ideas, ask questions, distribute, and access resources, reply to messages or discussion threads at any time that is convenient for them.
- By creating a network to be THE GLOBAL Gynecologic Oncology organization uniting the globe in the fight against gynecologic cancer.

Why Membership Expansion?

- Desire a deeper sense of community within IGCS
- Fulfill our core mission of education and educational opportunities
- Plan to engage membership from all over the world

Global Curriculum & Mentorship Program

A Global Approach to a Global Problem

The IGCS launched in early 2017 the Gynecologic Oncology Global Curriculum & Mentorship Program:

- a comprehensive two-year education and training program
- designed for regions around the world that do not currently have formal training in gynecologic oncology.
- Matches institutions and individuals from higher resource settings with partners in lower resource settings wishing to obtain formal Gynecologic Oncology training (twinning).

Global Curriculum & Mentorship Program

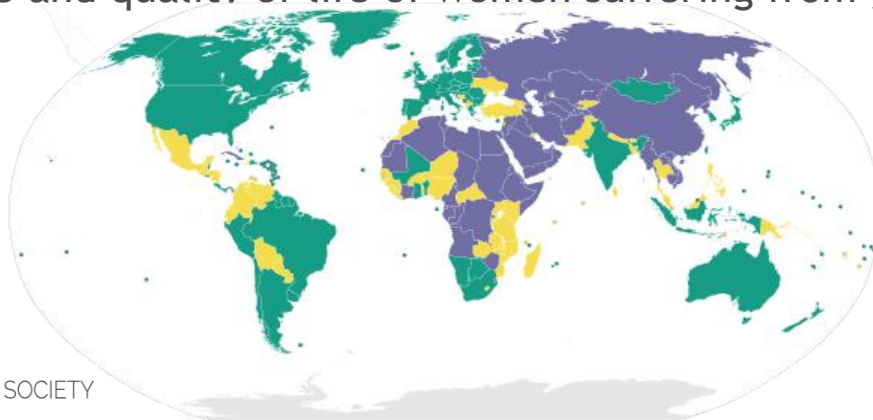

2017 Pilot Sites:

1. Da Nang Oncology Hospital, Vietnam
 - USA (T. Dinh) & Singapore (J. Ng)
2. Hospital Central de Maputo, Mozambique
 - Brazil (G. Fontes, R. Moretti, M. Salcedo) & USA (K. Schmeler)
3. St. Paul's Hospital & Black Lion Hospital, Ethiopia
 - USA (C. Johnston, R. Ghebre) & Germany (T. Kuhn)
4. Moi University, Kenya
 - Canada (B. Rosen, A. Covens)

Strategic Alliance Membership Program

Program Overview

- IGCS is seeking to develop alliances with Regional Societies whose objectives are consistent and aligned with the Society.
- This partnership will bring together the leaders and memberships of organizations allowing for closer dialogue, idea sharing and a forum for information and collaboration in finding solutions to the many issues that face us in gynecologic oncology around the world.
- IGCS is confident the Strategic Alliance Membership will have a positive impact and improve the outcome and quality of life of women suffering from gynecologic cancers

Program Benefits

Network

Mentorship of Young Doctors in clinical trials, publishing, abstracts, and presentations at scientific meetings.

Leadership Collaborations

IGCS believes there is mutual benefit in having a dialogue between the Society leadership and Regional Societies to discuss challenges and opportunities facing the organizations and the specialty.

Presence on igcs.org Website

With a new website launched in late October of 2016 the IGCS will offer a prominent location on the site that will include a Society page under Strategic Alliance Member Section. It will include logo, information about the society, leadership, how to become a member and member benefits, any upcoming events, and a link to your society website.

Program Benefits

IGCS International Women's Cancer Partner Roundtable

IGCS is committed to including Regional Societies in our meaningful conversations with our industry partners.

The Partner Roundtable program is conducted in a format that allow for open discussion and problem-solving in areas of mutual interest, current trends, and future topics in gynecologic oncology, along with specific issues as identified by industry.

Member Only portal of igcs.org

An important component of the new IGCS website is the educational portal that is the member only access. It will provide interim state of the art continuing medical education in between AGOI conferences. Education offerings include:

- Virtual Tumor Board
- Surgical Film Library
- Education Exchange talks
- Biennial meeting webcasts
- Peer-Reviewed Journal Blogs

Program Benefits

Annual Disease Awareness Campaign

IGCS is committed to promoting awareness of gynecologic cancers and partnering with Regional Societies to make this happen.

Together there will be the development and dissemination of materials in a disease awareness campaign specific to cervical cancer. Tool kits will be developed in concert with the Regional Society and disseminated to members and their patients.

Other Benefits

Annual Complimentary advertisement in IJGC

Complimentary table top booth at the IGCS Meeting

Publication of regional society's activities and accomplishments in one edition of IJGC, subject to editorial review.

Discounted Journal subscription available to regional society members at discount from Publisher pricing and WHO classification.

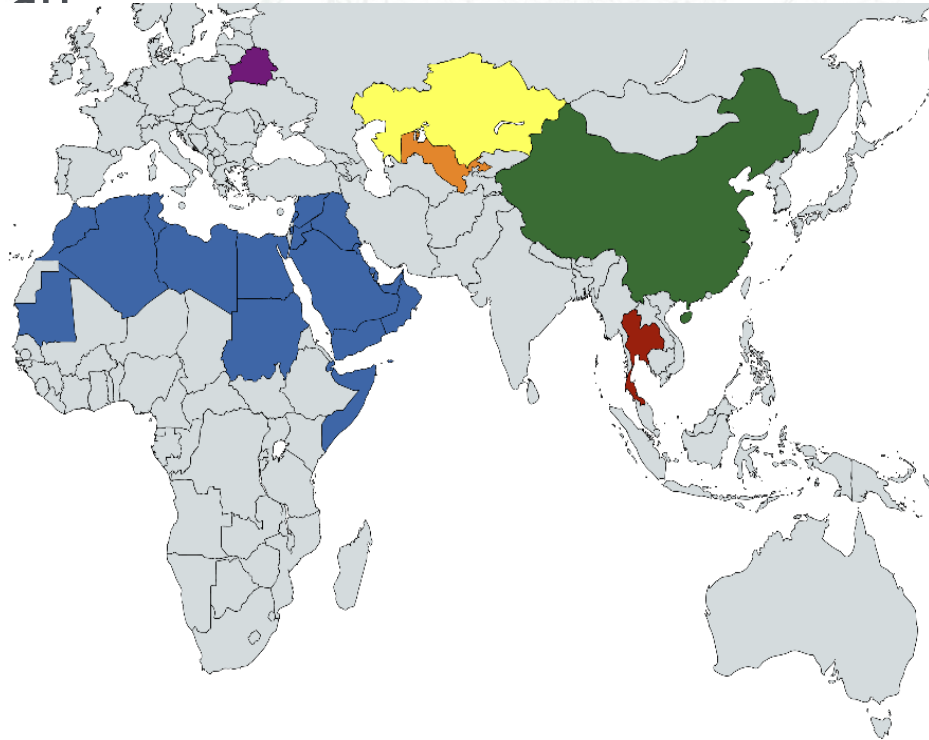

Strategic Alliance Membership Program

IGCS welcomes:

Belarus, China, Kazakhstan, PARSGO (Pan Arabian Society of Gynecologic Oncology), Thailand, and Uzbekistan

IGCS Strategic Alliance Partners

- China
- Belarus
- Pan Arabian Research Society of Gynecologic Oncology
- Kazakhstan
- Uzbekistan
- Thailand

Conclusion

IGCS desires and is positioning itself to be THE Global organization for Gynecologic Oncology and will accomplish this by developing international alliances involving many different countries.
